The Wrong Man.

Brown is going around with a variegated eyes. This is the story that is telling his friends.

"It was such a pretty thing that the one I thought of it the matter I got. The milkman leaves my milk before the sun is up. It is somewhat when I feel called upon to leave my bed, and during the time that the milk remains on the back porch some one has been making a practice to call it. It is more than provoking to find when breakfast is ready that you have no milk for your coffee."

"I set all manner of traps to catch a thief, without success. Then I had one of my neighbor's boys to sit and keep watch. But the next morning I found the milk gone and the boy asleep."

"The other morning I chanced to be awake just before sunrise, and I heard some one rummaging with the milk can on the back porch. Hastily putting on my dressing gown, I stepped softly to the door and threw it open."

"In the dim light I could see a man standing over the can, and without waiting to see if he was a bigger man than I, I sprang at him with blood in my eyes. He shook threw him off the porch, and we rolled down the steps together, fighting like a couple of wild cats."

"We must have made an awful racket, for I heard the windows going up all around me, and some one was blowing a police whistle, while my wife was wringing her hands upon the porch."

"I got my man down at last and sat upon him. We were both a sight, being covered with milk from head to foot."

"It had grown a little lighter by this time, and my wife, taking in the situation, gasped."

"John, that's the milkman that you are sitting on!"

"It was for a fact, and explanations were in order."

"I understand that the milkman is going around exhibiting his wounds and saying that I made a brutal and cowardly attack upon a defenseless man and increasing the amount of damages he is going to sue me for at every telling."

"Meanwhile some one is stealing my milk."

TOO MUCH.

De Sapp--Do you think that Miss Oliver was having fun with me?

De Sapp--You see, I had my bull terrier with me. And I said to her "That dog knows as much as I do." And she said, "Don't you think $1.50 was too much to pay for him?"

Easily Interested.

"Transmitting by telephone is mere by a matter of vibration."

"So I've heard."

"Experimenters have found that you can make yourself understand over the wire by holding the receiver against your chest."

"Sounds reasonable. Will it work through a porous plaster?"

True.

Mrs. Wise--So you're going to marry and go to housekeeping, eh? Why, you don't know the first thing about keeping house."

Miss Pert--Oh, yes I do.

Mrs. Wise--I'd like to know what?

Miss Pert--The first thing is to get a man to keep house for."

Slightly Different.

"Ten years ago that fellow borrowed the passage money to come to this country."

"And now he's worth millions, eh?"

"No. He owes for his passage money yet."--Kansas City Journal.

When the Shoe Pinches.

Women can stand pain far more heroically than men. I know it by experience.

"What are you a doctor?"

"No, a shoe-maker."

The Modern Politician.

"Pay your debts promptly, son."

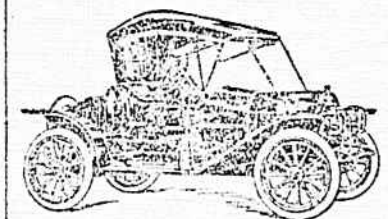

"All right, dad."

"Then when Opportunity knocks you won't be afraid to go to the door."

The Art of Settling.

"Hello, Brown, settled in your new house yet?"

"I guess so. Everything is unpacked now except the things we really need."--Detroit Free Press.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Dr. Wiley, food expert of the Agricultural Department has come into the lime light again by calling attention to the evil effect of what he calls the "shot-gun" doctors, that is the doctor who gives a prescription containing a large number of drugs in the hope that one of the lot may hit the disease. He says these doctors remind him of the hunter who uses a shot gun, expecting that one of the charge may hit the mark. He is going to try and have this system of practicing medicine remedied, he does not say in what way, but if he carries 't too far he may greatly reduce the list of these professional gentlemen.

It is likely to be a long time before the Republicans gain control of the House again. Reappointment of representation and re-districting and "serrymandering" of the states, promise to give the Democrats a hold upon the situation until at least the next ten year census period. They will pass an act to fix the representation in Congress to correspond to the increased population as shown by the new census and in this way will determine the future membership, based upon this population. Many of the states will also "serrymander" the districts, thus depriving the Republicans of many districts. This is considered legitimate fruits of victory and parties have taken advantage of it.

There will be a large number of what are called "lame ducks," for the Administration to take care of after the 4th of March. These peculiar animals are defeated candidates, old politicians out of jobs, whom the Administration feels it a duty to provide for in some way. One of the leading ones just now is Senator Carter, of Montana, whose legislative career has gone democratic. Carter it will be remembered was Chairman of the Republican National Committee when Cleveland defeated Baine. It is now suggested that he is to be provided for by putting him in Hitchcock's place as Postmaster General. Others will be taken care of in comfortable burths.

There is much talk here of an extra session of Congress immediately after the present one expires, March 4th. The Democrats can force this by refusing to permit the passage of the annual appropriation bills during the coming short session, and in this way cut off all appropriations thus forcing the President to call an extra session. If this is not done the Democrats will not get control of the House until December next, a year from now. It has also been intimated that the President may call an extra session to consider the tariff, as the people have spoken and are not satisfied with the present law upon that subject. Already the struggle is now on for the important offices of the House, and Democrats of national prominence are laying claim to them. It now appears that the Clerkship and Doorkeeper will go to the South while the Sergeant-at-Arms will go Pennsylvania or Ohio, with chances favoring the latter state, owing to its political showing.

"Well, I've solved the question as to what to give the men folks, anyhow."
